FLEISCHMANN locomotives and cars are equipped with the world's most reliable HO coupler. It is designed to allow you to pull or push long trains over the most rugged terrain or switchwork. It will couple automatically on contact and uncouple automatically on sections 1700/2E (manual) or 1700/2MS (electric). Many other manufacturers still use the horn (NMRA) coupler, which was also used by FLEISCHMANN in past years. To enable you to interchange with equipment having the old coupler, a snap-on conversion coupler No. 99/3 is available free when you buy a loco or car; 5 c each otherwise.

THE FLEISCHMANN COUPLER

All FLEISCHMANN locomotives and cars come equipped with the proven FLEISCHMANN coupler. Millions of these have been produced, and they are in daily use in homes as well as club and museum layouts throughout the world. Due to their double hooks, they couple easily and stay coupled in all situations. They are reliable for pulling as well as pushing long trains and they uncouple unfailingly on the FLEISCHMANN uncoupling tracks 1700/2MS (electric) or 1700/2E (manual).

This is the most reliable coupler ever designed for model railroad use. It is gravity operated and not dependent on springs.

For those who presently own equipment with the horn (NMRA) couplers, a snap on NMRA coupler has been produced. This can be snapped on to or off the FLEISCHMANN coupler without tools. Sets for permanent conversion are also available from your dealer.

SC-0 "Colorado Special" Layout
